The Daly City BART station under construction in 1972.

Seventies: Daly City faced the challenges

By JOHN CURRY
Post Staff Writer

It's official, or will be soon. Daly City has made it through the 1970s. It wasn't easy for San Mateo County's second-largest city, the population of which went through the 70,000 mark early in the decade and now hovers around 75,000, with a wide spectrum of ethnic roots in every corner of the world.

Probably no city in the county faced more drastic challenges and had to make more far-reaching decisions in the 70s than did Daly City, with the corner not yet turned on many of them as 1980 dawns.

Certainly no city in this county has been affected more by what happens in San Francisco, its large neighbor across its north city limit line, where so many of Daly City's residents commute, work and play.

Daly City entered the decade now closing with the most modern of American status symbols, the new Interstate 280 freeway, bisecting it into a natural "old town" and "new town" configuration, all for the convenience and safety of thousands of daily commuters who drive through enroute to and from Baghdad by the Bay.

Daly City gained nationwide attention in the fall of 1973 as the western terminus of the 75-mile Bay Area Rapid Transit District rail system, with the new passenger station opening in September of that year.

Also in the planning stage at the time was an extension of BART to San Francisco International Airport and possibly further on down the Peninsula, while Daly City officials, businessmen and residents argued over how much new business, if any, the BART trains would bring to the city.

The city got the commuters, all right, enough to require an 1,100-car parking garage to be built by BART next to its station in 1975 and for the city to restrict parking on its adjacent streets in 1978. BART's success could be measured by the full garage and clogged streets around the station, which led to the "preferential parking" zone established by the city, the first in this county, which decrees that parking is limited to residents only on those streets.

How big a can of worms that decision opened hasn't been determined yet, with more neighborhoods between the BART station and Mission Street up the hill coming to the City Council for preferential parking designations on their streets.

How the modern transportation amenities can disrupt a city also was demonstrated in 1972 when the city, in an unprecedented move for this county, began proceedings to widen Knowles Avenue to serve traffic to the BART station by dislodging 55 families from their homes in the path of the widening and re-locating them.

The re-location was successful, however, and was another first, the use by a city anywhere of state gasoline tax money for that purpose.

Near the end of 1973 also, the decision was made the change of name of Knowles Avenue, east of Junipero Serra Boulevard, and Alemany Boulevard, its extension to the west through Westlake, to John Daly Boulevard, to avoid the confusion of two names on the same thoroughfare and in honor of the founder of Daly City.

The story of another of Daly City's most illustrious latter-day pioneers, Henry Doelger, ended with his death in July, 1978. Doelger built 6,250 homes, thousands of apartments and the Westlake and Skyline shopping centers in Daly City between 1947 and the early 1962. The successor company to his development firm still owns and operates several properties in the city.

Doelger, who developed much of the Sunset and Richmond districts in San Francisco before World War II, was a man of great vision who bought up the hog farms and sand dunes comprising most of present-day Daly City in 1945 and carried the post-war housing boom into the city with a flourish. Most of the northern part of the city west of Interstate 280 is his.

The search was begun in early 1979 for something suitable to name after him, such as a street, shopping center or park. Changing John Daly to Doelger Boulevard drew too much protest, so re-naming Westlake Park, next to the North San Mateo County Sanitation District sewage treatment plant, was settled on.

Today, with most of its land area filled with development, the city is trying to different approaches to broaden a tax base that has proven narrow and inadequate - annexation and redevelopment.

Annexation of nearby San Bruno Mountain was high on the civic priority list as the decade of the 1970s opened, but faded as the future of the mountain became a county-wide issue and most of it eventually was designated for open space and a large regional park.

In 1974 the city won a contract from the tax-rich Crocker Industrial Area, adjacent to Brisbane, for fire protection services, a contract it now considers as giving it a foot in the door toward taking the industrial area into the city sometime.

The county Local Agency Formation Commission has closed out the 1970s with a resounding shock for Daly City, though, the LAFCO staff recommending that not only the Crocker Industrial Park, but the northeastern ridge and the adjacent Bayshore area of Daly City be put in Brisbane's sphere of influence for potential future annexation. This would mean de-annexing Bayshore, many residents and businessmen of which already have voiced their opposition.

With these areas would go potential large high-rise developments on the ridge, the Cow Palace and a number of city jobs now devoted to servicing the Bayshore and industrial park areas.

The official protests by the city to LAFCO began Nov. 29 and figure to carry on for some time. Daly City sees annexation of these areas as its future revenue salvation, since only about one percent of the city's land area now is in industrial usage.

Redevelopment became a dirty word in 1972, after the city established a Redevelopment Agency with the avowed aim of modernizing and replacing if need be the entire 66-acre area bounded by San Jose Avenue, Junipero Serra Boulevard, Vista Grande Avenue, Mission Street and the north city limits.

The city in late 1971 had declared the area a redevelopment zone for purposes of study. But word got around that one of the alternatives being studied was flattening the entire area, including homes and business buildings, and starting all over again.

This precipitated some of the great marches on City Hall of the decade, with 200 or more persons crowding into the council chamber at meeting after meeting.

This area of old Daly City, much of it dating back before the turn of the century, also lost its official designation of "Old Daly City" for awhile, in favor of the officially-dubbed "Center City," but that didn't go over, either. The controversy led to the formation of the Original Daly City Protective Association, today perhaps still one of the most active citizens groups in the city.

The tumult subsided with no homes being torn down and businesses being encouraged to modernize. New business also has been encouraged to locate in the area, with some success. A Mission Street beautification project has been ongoing for the past several years, with utility lines going underground, trees and planter boxes going in, and sidewalks and crosswalks being spruced up.

Because of so many things going on at once, the city reorganized its planning operations into a Department of Planning and Community Development in 1974, with Don Fleming, assistant to the city manager, heading it. He's still there, as is City Manager David R. Rowe, one of a few city managers in the county to serve through the entire decade in the same city.

In public education, Daly City has followed much the same trend as the rest of the county, with a lower birth rate and higher housing costs resulting in declining enrollment in the school districts serving the city.

While new schools couldn't be built fast enough in the 1960s, the question in the mid-1970s became one of which ones could be dispensed with. The Jefferson Elementary School District, who hit a peak enrollment of about 10,000 10 years ago in 18 schools, now is at around 7,000 enrollment, while five schools have been closed. The city has its sights on Lincoln and a part of Olympia for parks.

The Jefferson Elementary district suffered through two brief teacher strikes in the early decade, but the ones that probably will be remembered the longest were those in the fall of 1978 and 1979 that hit the Jefferson Union High School District. The American Federation of Teachers Local 1481 went out for 13 days in 1978 over wages, then again this September over a wide range of contract provisions for nine weeks, the second-longest teacher strike against a public school system in the nation's history. A new contract was agreed to Nov. 6, but the teachers and the paraprofessionals and office personnel who went out with them and district officials still are assessing the damage to the educational program this year and to the futures of the affected students.

Hope your holidays have been blessed and that the New Year holds much love and joy for all of you!

Members of Our Lady of Mercy parish will welcome the start of the new decade with a dinner dance in the parish hall on New Years Eve.

Mrs. Carolyn Machi and Dick Galliani are chairing the event which is co-sponsored by the Westlake Catholic Men and the Westlake Catholic Women.

This year the theme will be "Stairway to the 80s" and the dinner will feature barbecued steak served with wine.

The dinner will be served at 9 p.m., following the social hour. Dancing will be tothe music of the Stephanie Teel Trio.

For reservations contact Mrs. Shirley McKee. Price per person is $17.50.

Members of the Daly City Area chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) are invited to resolve to treat themselves to something very special in 1980.

Mrs. Doris Johnson, the tour chairman, is making arrangements for a trip to the Caribbean in the spring.

If you resolve to be one of those enjoying this junket, call her soon and make arrangements to reserve your space. The ship sails in May.

If you are a Girl Scout leader you may wish to make a holiday resolution to take the girls in your group on a winter camping trip.

The San Francisco Bay Girl Scout Association has now equipped the Butano Creek campground with indoor sleeping quarters for 50 campers making it the area's winter campsite.

Mrs. Marie MacKinnon of Westlake resolved to help broaden the understanding of Christmas celebrations for approximately 90 pre-school age children this past week.

Mrs. MacKinnon who was born in Holland donned native costume and took part in a program on Christmas customs in Holland and in Germany. Appearing on the holiday program with Mrs. MacKinnon was Mrs. Martha Kunstorff and Mrs. Ellie Clarke.

Among the local children taking part in the program were Danny Szeto, Peter Lai, Reggie, Rowena and Richie Bondoc and Christopher Padian.

Home for the Christmas holiday is Timothy Oliva of St. Francis Heights.

Young Oliva is stationed with the Army in Germany and will return there following a holiday leave spent visiting with his mother, sister and brother and local friends.

CHRISTMAS FAVORS

Signs of improvement ahead for SSF hill

Several new recreational facilities may be available to South San Francisco residents in the near future.

The City Council Wednesday approved an $80,000 enhancement project for Sign Hill, gave the go-ahead for further investigation into renovating Magnolia Center and hired an engineering firm to design a new lighting system for Orange Memorial Park.

Landscape architect Mel Lee described how several trails would criss-cross Sign Hill, leading to an overlook and small three-tier amphitheater at the summit.

Beautification plans include planting part of the hillside with several kinds of wildflowers, installing 9,000 feet of hiking trails, developing an irrigation system and planting several groves of trees.

Access to the park will be from five points, to prevent one neighborhood from having to bear all the congestion.

Much of the loop trail system will be accessible by wheelchair and will lead to a small seating area just above where the lighted Christmas tree now stands.

Recreation Commissioner Joan Hamilton said fire-resistant plants will be planted to cut down on the risk of the new park being wiped out by the annual wave of summer grass fires.

Lyle Norton, director of the Parks and Recreation Department, said the California Conservation Corps has agreed to provide the labor for the project.

The city will be left with a balance of $45,000, he said, adding that he is looking for funding sources for that amount.

The council also was given an update on Magnolia Center, the vacant school used until several years ago as a senior citizen center and for other recreation classes.

Norton said a structural engineer has looked at the building (it was closed because it did not meet earthquake safety standards) and found that the auditorium is worth saving.

The auditorium and adjacent classrooms could be used as a cultural arts theater, with dressing rooms and storage.

He also recommended that part of the basement level and groundlevel office space be used for a senior citizen center.

The rest of the school would be torn down to make room for parking.

Mayor Terry Mirri advised Norton to go "full bore ahead with this thing" and to report back to the council in January.

Councilwoman Roberta Teglia abstained from participating in the discussion because she owns a home near the center.

The council also approved hiring T.H. Rogers and Associates to provide engineering services for the design of a lighting system at Orange Memorial Park.

Norton said state funds will be used to replace the softball field lights and to install pathway, security, parking and tennis court lights.

In a related matter, the council voted to support the passage of Senate Bill 547, the Parklands and Renewable Resources Investment Bond Issue, which could bring $200,000 in recreation funds into the city.

Back-to-basics in offing

Deciding not to renew Superintendent Robert Rottman's contract with the San Bruno Park School District wasn't the only action trustees took this week.

They also ratified a new two-year contract with the district's classified employees, gave a structured school program the green light and appointed Trustee Christo Pallas as the board's official liaison on a proposal to annex the Portola Highlands and Pacific Heights sections to the district's limits.

The contract the board ratified gives the district's classified employees a 7 percent raise during 1979-80 (retroactive to Sept. 1) and a 5 percent raise the following year.

Other highlights of the contract are:

- Present employees are guaranteed an eight-hour day and five-day work week, with variations being voluntary on the part of the employees.
- The district has agreed to give 10 days' notice prior to involuntary transfers and will provide for a review of transfers by the assistant superintendent for business.
- Employees have the right to file multiple grievances for the same alleged violation of the contract.
- The district has agreed to advisory arbitration during disputes, but the board retains the right to make final and binding decisions.
- Employees who are members of Chapter 139 of the California School Employees Association must remain members during the life of the contract and any new employees hired during that time must join the association. However, the association has the sole responsibility for enforcing those provisions.

A long-discussed proposal to begin an alternative "back-to-basics" program in the district may become a reality next September as a result of the board's decision to proceed with the program.

However, the first step is to assess the interest of parents and staff in the idea, and, Assistant Superintendent Robert Barron said, he assumed the board would reconsider its decision if enough support isn't found.

Back-to-basics programs or "structured schools" as they sometimes are known, typically emphasize discipline, stringent dress codes, regular homework and such basic courses as reading, writing and arithmetic.

In addition, they usually require parents and children to sign "contracts" promising to abide by the rules of the program.

The board's decision to appoint Pallas as its liaison on the annexation issue came after Pastor Donald Sheley of the Church of the Highlands and a resident, Carolyn Livengood, urged the board to support a proposal to extend the district's boundaries to include the Portola Highlands and Pacific Heights areas.

Mrs. Livengood said the committee working on the idea also would support annexation of the Monte Verde and Lomita Park areas if residents of those areas express interest.

Youngsters in the four neighborhoods presently attend elementary school in the Laguna Salada, South San Francisco and Millbrae districts, and the Jefferson and San Mateo high school districts.

'The Collectables'

A curious and amusing collection of 18th and 19th century boxes owned by Mrs. William Abeel is being exhibited at John Simmons, 540 Sutter St., San Francisco.

Also on view will be the San Francisco Opera's collection of costumes from the opera "Madame Butterfly."

The exhibit will continue through Aug. 10 and is the first of a series called "The Collectables" planned to continue in later months with a variety of interesting pieces.

Getting all of the staff of any publication together at one time is difficult because of varying schedules, and it was no different with teacher Le Pacini's journalism class at Jefferson High School in Daly City. Those who could be rounded up to communicate their season's greetings were, left to right, Luann Jeffries, Ruby Chow, Karen Wong, Rosie Tejada, Carrie Barsanti, and Bernard Thomas.

Psychological Stress Evaluator

Police bring a man into the station for questioning about a bank robbery, and the man insists he "didn't do it."

Next step, police ask the suspect to take a lie detector test (polygraph) to help prove his innocence, right?

Wrong, at least at Burlingame Police Department, where Detective James Eldredge is more likely to ask a suspect if he'll agree to take a "Psychological Stress Evaluator" (PSE) test.

While lie detector machines measure changes in the body such as heartbeat, respiration, skin conductivity and sweat, PSE machines measure tremors in a person's muscles.

The PSE machines zero in on the voice muscles as a person speaks, explained Sgt. Eldredge, because voice muscles carry electrical muscles from the brain.

If the subject tells a lie, the resulting body stress may prompt changes in the voice muscle tremors.

The tiny scle tremors cannot be heard by the human ear, Eldredge continued, but the PSE machine records changes in the tremors as the subject speaks into a microphone. The recording is charted to determine whether the subject was telling the truth.

"God is not in the machine and a little bird isn't going to jump up and say 'you lied,' " said Eldredge, but he claims that PSE tests are more accurate than the polygraph.

Although there are few PSE machines or licensed operators being used by law enforcement agencies today, Eldredge believes PSE tests will soon be widely used.

"I use it as an investigative tool," Eldredge said, "and it has been extremely successful for us."

Many persons are opposed to police trying to extract information from the human body — be it polygraph or PSE tests. Eldredge noted neither test can be administered unless a subject agrees.

Furthermore, Eldredge said, "In this business we prove more people innocent than guilty. Ninety percent of the cases I test (with PSE) are (shown to be) innocent people."

What the PSE machine can do, Eldredge continued, is help steer an officer in the right direction as he investigates a crime.

Research on PSE first began during the Korean War when U.S. Army scientists discovered that micro-muscle tremors occur in the human body.

However, the Army researchers didn't know how to chart or analyze the tremors and, Eldredge said, it wasn't until the late 1960s that scientific researcher Olaf Lippold discovered how to record and analyze the tremors.

Thus, Lippold discovered a new method for measuring stress in the human body, Eldredge said, and he pointed out that PSE machines, like the polygraph, don't do anything else but measure body stress.

Eldredge noted that PSE is not at all like voice comparison tests (voice graphs or prints which measure audible changes or inflections in the voice).

PSE tests, like polygraph tests, are not always an accurate means of determining whether someone is telling the truth, Eldredge added.

"If you don't perform the (PSE) test correctly you are going to get inaccurate results right down the line," he said.

Eldredge also noted that the degree of accuracy in a PSE test is directly proportionate to the amount of jeopardy associated with the crime being investigated.

In other words, he explained, if a suspect is being questioned about a petty theft the suspect may "successfully" lie. On the other hand, if a suspect is being questioned about a murder, a lie is more apt to show up on the PSE test.

In 1974, Eldredge first became interested in the Psychological Stress Evaluator, which is the trade name for the machine, manufactured by Dektor Corp.

Dektor officials licensed Eldredge as an operator of their machine in 1978. Eldredge has conducted several hundred PSE examinations in recent years.

Although the PSE tests have primarily served to "clear" people who police suspected of committing crimes, Eldredge said PSE has also helped police investigators nab "a lot of guilty people."

"It (the PSE machine) is a terrific tool for enhancing a confession," he claimed.

Finally, Eldredge said PSE is helping police deal with a disturbing trend in which increasing numbers of people are falsely and deliberately accusing others of commiting crime.

Eldredge said PSE has helped him uncover at least two dozen phony accusation cases in the last couple years.

"After all, law enforcement is after the truth and not just the bad guy," he stated.

VISITS AUSTRALIA

Navy Ensign Steven E. Petersen, son of Fred L. and Shirley I. Petersen, of 867 Silvia Court, Pacifica, recently visited Perth and Fremantle, Australia.

He is an officer assigned to the frigate USS Stein, homeported in San Diego, and currently operating as a unit of the U.S. 7th Fleet.

His ship has been conducting training exercises in the Indian Ocean with other 7th Fleet units. The port visits came as part of the 7th Fleet's mission of presenting goodwill in the Western Pacific. His ship's remaining schedule includes additional training exercises and scheduled port visits.

The Stein is a 438-foot long "Knox" class frigate and carries a crew of 283 officers and enlisted men. Equipped with guns, missiles and rockets, she can operate independently or as part of a naval task force. She is also outfitted with a landing platform and normally carries a light helicopter for long range detection and attack of submarines.

Petersen is a 1974 graduate of Terra Nova High School, and a 1978 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., with a Bachelor of Science degree.

CAPPING OFF A LOAN

Gary Brannon, assistant vice president of the San Bruno branch of Wells Fargo Bank, says they're "a-okay" about the Capuchino High School marching band, which performed in front of the bank Wednesday. It was the band's way of saying thank you to Wells Fargo for a $29,000 loan that will allow the band to purchase airline tickets for its trip to Hawaii in June. The band will participate in Hawaii's annual King Kamahameha parade.

BOOK DONATIONS

As an aftermath of the holiday season, members of the community may be discarding books and records on hand to make way for new gifts. Members of the Friends of the Daly City Library Book Fair Committee Virginia Tierney, right, and Frances Lee suggest donations of books and records may be left in depositories at any of the four Daly City public libraries. Proceeds from The Friends' fairs benefit the library.

Joyce Golding elected Press Club president

Joyce Golding, who produces the "Where to Go, What to Do" page for the San Mateo Times, has been elected president of the Peninsula Press Club for 1980.

She will replace John H. "Jack" Russell, news editor at The Times, as president of the club.

John Steen, executive director of the San Mateo County Convention and Visitors Bureau, is the newly elected vice president.

Freelance photographer Sandy Kittel is the newly-chosen secretary. Ken Costa, editor of the Boutique and Villager, is treasurer.

Al Bullock, KGO-TV cameraman, and Dan Cook, editor of The Executive magazine, were elected club directors.

The new officers will be installed Feb. 22 during the club's annual scholarship and awards dinner at the Airport Hilton.

Outgoing President Russell, KGO-TV reporter Peter Cleaveland, Hughes Airwest public relations manager Larry Litchfield and corporate publicist Bill Stewart will continue to serve as directors.

Mrs. Golding, a charter who was active in forming the Peninsula Press Club, is the group's sixth president. She has held the offices of treasurer, secretary and vice president.

In fact, since the club has a tradition of electing a working press person to the presidency and a publicist as vice president, she is the first person to have held both jobs.

Formerly public relations director for the San Mateo County Arts Council, she created the "Where to Go, What to Do" calendar in 1978, and became a private contractor for The Times.

She is a native Californian, and the mother of five.

She is an active member in the Burlingame-San Mateo Soroptimist Club.

The public will be invited to the club's installation and awards dinner Feb. 22. Ken Erickson, regional public relations director for Western Airlines, will be master of ceremonies.

Winter clothes sought

The Volunteers of America is seeking donations of seasonal warm winter clothng and shoes for men, women, and children of all ages.

John M. Olmsted, officer in charge, states: "We are in to winter weather now, and appeals for warm clothing have increased. Particularly needed are warm jackets and topcoats, and heavier shoes and boots. Inflation has not let up, but continues to increase, and low-income families, and needy individuals, are feeling the brunt of it."

Also needed are donations of furniture, house furnishings of all kinds, large and small gas and electric appliances, radios, televisions, refrigerators, freezes, antiques, brick-a-brac and old newspapers.

VOA is conducting its annual fund-raising campaign, as well, the only time during the year this nationwide non-profit organization asks for funds from private citizens. For more details, call 626-0434.

Donors having clothing and house furnishings to donate may call 626-0434 to arrange for free truck pickup, either at home, or place of business

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

A diet ostrich . . . what is that? A diet ostrich is a funny two-legged creature who figures what she doesn't know isn't going to hurt her. So she makes sure that she never looks down to see her fat feet planted on a scale.

She may bury her head in the clouds and not sand, but she's hiding nonetheless.

And you should get a load of her around a full-length mirror (there's a load to get!) Absolutely blind! She summons the sales girl rather than confront her image. And if a seam or two pops while she yanks a skirt into place — "they're not sewing 'em up the way they once were."

As for her yearly physical at the doctor's — well, when you pay all that money, he's got to talk about something wrong. After all, that's how he earns his fee. But if all he can find is a few (half a hundred) pounds of overweight to worry about, why worry?

Bird watchers alert — here's how you spot the diet ostrich. The natural habitat of this rara avis is the kitchen, ice cream parlor, or the bakery.

She is easily recognizable by her plumage — a disreputable, shapeless raincoat. Her nesting habits are characterized by extreme withdrawal into home territory. She burnishes her surroundings into places of exceptional comfort close to a food supply.

The feeding technique has been refined into one of constant refueling — on the basis that she is doing it for her offspring. Eating habits are indiscriminate — anything as long as it is food and not nailed down.

How to change the diet ostrich? Well, the best way I know is to redirect her so that he's feeding techniques and eating habits are intrigued by good diet cooling.

The easiest way is to demonstrate the ease with which diet foods fits into recipes and refreshments. Start off easily with a quick-pick-up drink for a return from holiday shopping.

CHINA GIRL TEA

For each serving:
1/3 cup double strength tea
2/3 cup low calorie gingerale
2 slivers ginger
Mix tea and soda and pour over ice cubes in tall glass. Garnish with slivers of ginger.

It also helps to force a molting season — get the diet ostrich to shed that raincoat and look downward. This time with explicit instructions that there is a connection between head and body. (In severe cases it may be necessary to have the diet ostrich run her hands down throat and neck and across shoulders as a practical demonstration that all are joined.

An interesting thing about the diet ostrich — I've never seen one who was not capable of becoming a gaily feathered and brightly colored bird once she acknowledged that her mind and feet were connected.

Good morning, good cooks.

Merry, merry day after Christmas. You can relax, put your feet up and watch the kids wear out the batteries in their new toys. What larks!

If you had turkey for Christmas, this recipe for an ideal dessert to keep company with that leftover turkey should interest you.

LAYERED CRANBERRY SQUARES

9 whole graham crackers, halved
1 package (6-serving size) vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling
2 cups cold milk
1 container (4-oz.) non-dairy whipped topping, thawed
1 can (8 oz.) whole cranberry sauce.

Arrange 9 of the crackers in bottom of 9-inch square pan. Prepare the pudding mix with milk as directed on package for pudding. Fold in one cup of whipped topping. Pour half the pudding mixture over crackers in pan and top with the cranberry sauce. Arrange remaining crackers on the sauce and add remaining pudding mixture. Spread remaining whipped topping over top. Chill. Cut into squares.

Makes 9 servings.

If you would like to serve fruitcake in a different way, try this torte. It is surely easy to make and keeps nicely in the freezer till you are ready to serve.

FRUITCAKE TORTE

3 cups crumbled fruitcake
1/4 cup brandy
1 quart vanilla ice cream, slightly softened

Line an 8½x4½x2½-inch loaf pan with foil so foil extends 4 to 5 inches over sides of pan.

Place the three cups crumbled fruitcake in medium bowl and sprinkle with the fourth cup brandy. Press one cup of crumbs in bottom of pan. Spread 2 cups ice cream over crumbs; sprinkle with one cup crumbs and spread with remaining ice cream. Top with remaining crumbs. Bring foil up and cover cake. Freeze until firm. Slice to serve.

Serves 8.

The truly remarkable feat of Luis Sanchez

Le Pacini

I was privileged, recently, to be master of ceremonies and a sort of guest speaker at the Jefferson High School banquet commemorating that school's first football championship.

The reason why I was a "sort of" speaker is because no one was sure if John Madden, Jeff's greatest athletic hereo, would want to speak, since he would't be able to get to the banquet until about an hour after it started. So, as a hedge against Madden's not being prepared to speak, I was asked to say the obligatory "few words."

As it turned out, Big John did speak, and quite well, and confessed that he had thought Jeff MUST have won a football championship when he was there in 1953-54 (they won a basketball championship with Madden on the hardwoods), and he was frankly surprised that it was Jefferson's first football championship in the 55-year history of the school.

I can't blame Madden for being surprised. Jefferson has a proud athletic history, having produced many prominent athletes.

Right off the top of the typewriter I can think of the legendary Yankee bonus baby Eddie Cereghnio; Don Mossi, the great Cleveland southpaw relief pitcher of the 1950s; Ken Reitz, the Cardinals' Golden Glove; Tony Solaita, the power hitting first baseman with the Yankees, Kansas City, California, Montreal, et al; and a host of others who went on to college fame in baseball, football, basketball and track, too numerous a list for this space.

So, the NPL football championship was quite a feat for this group of kids and its 25-year-old rookie head coach, Luis Sanchez.

Sanchez did have a couple of things going for him when he came in — most of the key players returning of a talented group that had just missed the championship the year before, and veteran assistant coaches Jack McGuire and Jeff Jones. But the plusses ended there.

Do begin with, though talented, the squad was, as is always the case with Jeff, a small one — not much bench or a lot of weight. Gone was the builder of the team, the highly respected Jack Burgett, who had accepted the position as offensive coordinator at San Francisco City College. Sanchez was a first year assistant stepping in to replace Ron Fassler, who refused to cross picket lines during the longet teachers' strike in the history of California.

The normal pressure of being a first year head coach is difficult enough. Being very young is no great advantage, especially when you stand about 5-7 and can't look most of your players in the eye. But then there was the added pressure of crossing picket lines of people with whom he had worked in the past, and not being a regular Jefferson teacher, which makes it all the harder to gain students' respect.

And, of course, the confusion of the strike couldn't have helped the attitude of the young athletes, or the process of organizing them. And then there was the job with United Parcel Service starting at 1 a.m. and ending just before practice began.

Luis Sanchez was in tough. But then, Luie Sanchez IS tough, awfully tough.

When I introduced Sanchez that night, I called him, pound for pound, probably the toughest high school runner I had ever seen.

I called him, unequivocally, the best high school freshman back I had ever seen when he was at Terra Nova, and recounted his heroics as an all-league soccer player (he played four years of varsity soccer with the Tigers, as varsity football Most Valuable Player, as an All-NPL running back and as the NPL's leading rusher in his senior year.)

Later, I began thinking about how time tends to add extra layers of glory in the mind, so I checked back on a column I wrote in 1969 about Terra Nova's fabulous undefeated freshman football team that year. It was coached by Al Figone, who went on to become San Francisco State's head baseball coach and who, ironically, had attended Jeff and played baseball and football there with Madden.

Again, ironically, the team that came closest to the Tigers that year was Jefferson, who was beaten, 20-0.

Figone called his team not only the most talented and desire-packed team he had ever seen, but also the most intelligent. "Absolutely brilliant," he called them. And Luis Sanchez was the brightest spark and leader of the team.

Sanchez, who had come out of South America just a few years before and was already talking and thinking English fluently, "just never misses an assignment," said Figone.

But it wasn't just brains that made Sanchez stand out. No stats were kept in three of the ni ne games played that year, but in the six games in which stats were kept, Sanchez had been in on 90 percent of the offensive plays, gained close to 2,000 yards rushing for an average of 10 yards a carry, and scored 19 TDs. And bear in mind that freshmen play only 40-minute games!

Sanchez had it all, except, as it turned out, size. "Tremendous balance," said Figone, "quick start, and the instincts in knowing when to cut, how to use blockers, how to find those holes.

"Sanchez starts so fast, that he sometimes drew in-motion penalties because the quarterback wouldn't have the ball in his hand when Lu started moving. In other words, say the count was on two. On two, Lu would go, but the ball wouldn't have yet left the center's hands."

Sanchez went on to play two years at Menlo College, where he was all-league and all-state, and finished his playing career at San Francisco State, where he got a degree in physical education. He was a graduate assistant coach there for a season.

He later helped coach Terra Nova's soccer team, and is in his second year as assistant soccer coach for Terry Norton at Jefferson, who won the NPL title last year.

Maybe it rubbed off.

Speaking of Jefferson High football, Reggie Camp, their NPL Lineman of the Year last season, got in a lot of playing time at Cal this year, including a good chunk of time for old No. 90 in the Garden State Bowl.

Reggie, in fact, was just named to the Honorable Mention Team in the annual Blue Chip Magazine Freshman All-America Team, as selected by 80 coaches from across the country.

I hope Reggie's gotten rid of his motorcycle. Those things have cut short more promising careers than good pulling guards.

And speaking of the Garden State Bowl, it looked like a case of Roger Theder being out-coached or at least out-foxed by cagey Wayne Hardin. Hardin's magic worked only for the first quarter, as Cal out-played Temple from that point on, but one quarter and 21 quick points was sufficient.

Hardin did what John Ralston and Bill Walsh so often did with Stanford-in bowl games — used the extra practice time to install new looks in the offense and defense; little wrinkles that wouldn't show up in the exchanged game films. The most obvious example was the simple counter play that fullback Mark Bright made look like a new Harry Houdini escape trick. Hardin also apparently threw a few defenses at Cal that the Bears hadn't anticipated.

But it was a good learning experience for the young Cal coach, who may have also learned (IF the reports were true and not something trumped up by the Eastern press) not to denigrate an opponent for publication, especially in his back yard.

As you know, Steve Deberg broke Fran Tarkenton's NFL records for passes attempted and completed in one season.

Still, some Deberg detractors weren't impressed, citing Deberg's interceptions, his lack of touchdown passes, and abudance of short passes. Below are the complete stats for the Deberg and Tarkenton record breaking seasons for comparison:

	PA	PC	YDS	PCT.	TD	INT.	AV/AT/T	AV/COMP
Deberg	578	347	3652	60.03	17	21	6.32	10.50
Tark.	572	345	3468	60.30	32	25	6.06	10.05

Obviously, except for touchdown passes, Deberg had a much more solid passing year than did Tarkenton.

Powell paces Dons

Midway through the third quarter of Friday's non-league basketball clash between Aragon High and visiting O'Connell, an errant pass became lodged high on a wall behind a board, delaying the game.

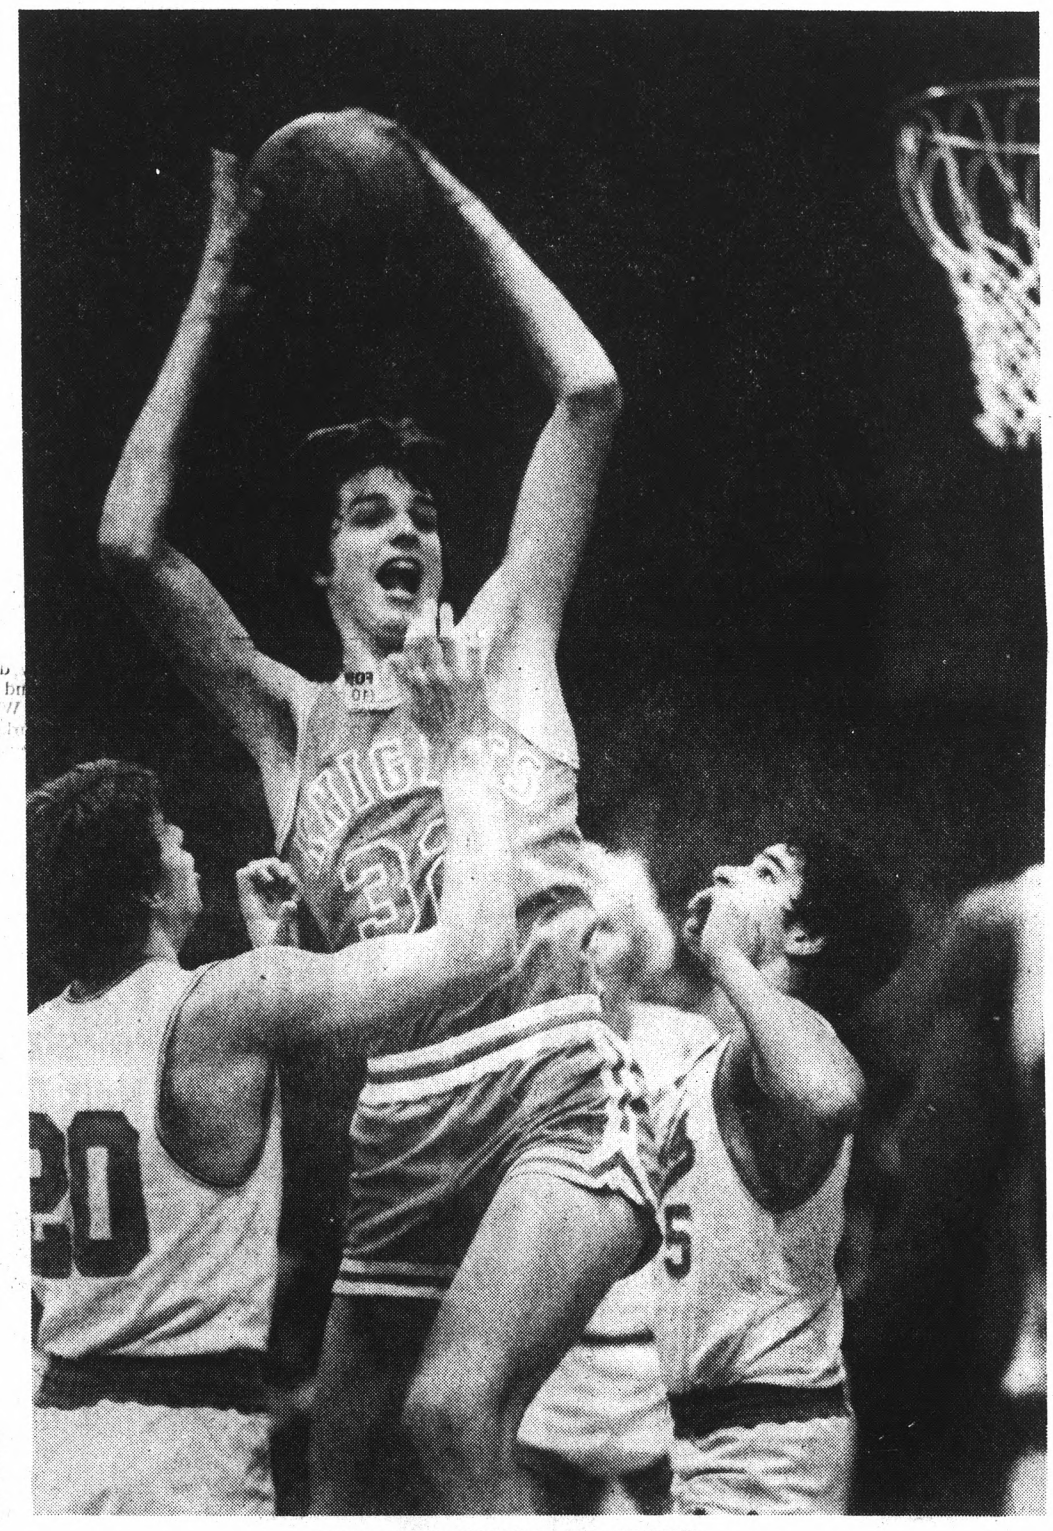
After both referees and an O'Connell player took unsuccessful stabs at retrieving it, the only plausible solution left was to let Don standout Kenny Powell climb up and rescue it.

And why not? The 6-2 senior did just about everything else. In addition to successfully retrieving the ball, Powell had 17 points, 10 rebounds, seven steals and eight assists in leading Aragon past O'Connell, 67-42.

"Kenny can be depended to do anything we ask of him," said Don Coach Ron Bolin, who surprisingly switched Powell from guard to forward to start the contest. "He does so many things well, it makes my job that much easier.

Bolin not only started Powell at forward but introduced two new faces into the starting lineup. Juniors Jim Butler and Carl Macedo started in front of veterans Ron Franklin and Gary Williams and were also quite impressive. The twosome combined for 21 points, helping destroy the O'Connell zone defense.

Butler, making his first start of the year, said, "I was kind of nervous at first. But, knowing Kenny was out there with me, it lifted my confidence. His presence on the court makes us all a lot better."



HEAD AND SHOULDERS ABOVE . . .

Local prep basketball teams continue to have a hard time dealing with Hillsdale's 6-10 junior center, Nick Vanos (32), here shown taking a pass which he's about to convert for a three-point play against the defense of shorter Carlmont players Rich Farley (20) and Kay Ray (5). Vanos, held scoreless for a quarter, wound up with 30 as Hillsdale topped the host Scots 71-47.

Pads out-break Panthers

Serra High did a lot of things well against visiting Burlingame Friday night.

So well, in fact, that the Padres seldom looked back, speeding to a 102-74 non-league basketball win.

The Padres' fast break was at work, with Tim Baldocchi collecting 25 points and Steve Schumacher and Marty Pletkin each adding 18.

"Everything went well for us tonight," said Serra Coach Kevin Donahue. "We knew that Burlingame was not at full strength (the Panthers have injury problems), so we tried to get an up-tempo game going, hoping that they would tire out. I'll tell you though, give them a lot of credit, they fought hard and never died."

Matt Hesselgren was just about everywhere for the Panthers, collecting 30 points and grabbing 10 rebounds. When Hesselgren wasn't there, Greg Barton was and added 19 points. Center Andy Craig scored eight points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

Serra went ahead from the start and continued to expand its lead throughout the game. Padre playmaker guard Bob McMillian contributed six assists, along with his six points. Kevin Dunleavy had 10 points for Serra.

Both teams shot better than 50 percent for the game, but Serra was able to get off 75 shots, compared to Burlingame's 58. Burlingame outrebounded the Padres 35 to 29, but turnovers were the Panthers' downfall.

Burlingame (3-7) visits Terra Nova next Thursday for a 1 p.m. battle, while Serra (6-5) hosts Gunn next Friday at 8 p.m.

The Wildcats built leads of 11 and 12 points in the second half.

Promising effort

Canada third in tournament

FREMONT — Canada College's third-place finish in the Ohlone Basketball Classic will ensure a happy Christmas Holiday for Coach Bub Bowling.

The Colt mentor was very pleased as his team romped over Cabrillo, 77-60, in the third-place contest Friday night.

More important, however, the tournament:

- Signaled the re-emergence of Tod Sedlacek as the Colts' scoring leader;
- Showed Canada could play with Northern California's top team, unbeaten Chabot;
- Proved the Colts have good depth in a strong second-five unit.

Chabot won the tournament handily, defeating host Ohlone, 91-58, in the finals to remain Northern California's only Division I unbeaten at 10-0. The only tough game for the Gladiators was Thursday's 81-71 semifinal triumph over Canada.

The 6-3 Sedlacek, despite still being plagued by an injured foot, tallied 62 points and grabbed 19 rebounds in the three-day tournament. He played only a little more than half the final game, scoring 14 points.

Canada led from the start, and Bowling substituted an entire second unit eight minutes into the game. That group, led by Aragon grad Charles Patton (6-5), stretched the Colt lead from six to 10 points. Patton wound up the game scoring leader with 17 points and the top rebounder with 10. He had 21 rebounds in the three games to finish among the top five in the tourney.

Bowling was particularly pleased with the play of 6-0 frosh guard Don Stremme, a Hillsdale grad, among that "second team." "He'll be playing a lot more," Bowling indicated.

Soph Bobby Chilton tallied 11 points subbing for Sedlacek.

Canada will take a 5-4 record to Aptos next Thursday for the Cabrillo doubleheader — opening with Cabrillo (now 7-3) at 7 p.m., and plays Monterey Peninsula, the lone Division II unbeaten, at the same time Friday.

Jeff holds off Falcs

Jefferson High downed Crestmoor in a non-league basketball contest Friday, 56-48, but not without a fourth-quarter comeback.

The Falcons played superbly in the first half, making up an early 12-2 deficit with a strong man-to-man defense and patient work on offense, to build a 21-16 halftime lead.

The lead stuck throughout the third quarter, but early in the fourth, a Jefferson zone press forced several Crestmoor turnovers, and the momentum swung around to the Indians.

Jeff went ahead for good with 4:18 remaining when Richard Rodgers, playing only his second game after a football injury, went backdoor for an easy lay-up and a 45-44 Indian lead. Ken Mackey and Zach Alexander made sure Jeff kept the lead with some fancy shooting.

"We got close in the second half," said Indian Coach Bud Bresnahan, "and were able to get more physical on the boards. Alexander played a great game."

Crestmoor, behind the shooting and rebounding of Derrick Horton, took the lead early in the second quarter. Horton went for 19 points and seven rebounds, while Falcon teammate Dennis Davison had 12 points.

Crestmoor was working wonders on defense, holding Jeff to just four second-period points. Then it all collapsed, and a rash of turnovers allowed the Indians back into the game.

For Jeff, Mackey and Alexander each scored 18 points. Alexander added six rebounds.

Shark run beats Galileo

Oceana High broke open a close contest in the fourth quarter to down visiting Galileo of San Francisco 70-58 in a non-league basketball game Friday.

Eric Claybon led the Shark attack with 31 points, hitting 14 field goals. Jess Whipple added 22 points.

Galileo scored six quick points to close out the third quarter and come within two of Oceana. Then the Sharks brought loose for 23 points in the final period to secure the win.

Oceana started slowly, falling behind in the first period before rebounding in the second stanza, with Claybon and Whipple connecting from hoops outside and inside.

It was the first victory of the year for the Sharks.

Recounting the history of the Christmas card

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

In December, the dailyu mail no longer is just a flood of bills, advertisements and impersonal messages, punctuated periodically by a handwritten note from a friend.

It's the Holiday Season and the daily mail brings greetings, ornate, bedazzling Christmas cards in heavy envelopes, printed and home produced Christmas letters long and short, p9stcards bearing both a printed message and a friend's cheery wish for holdiay happiness.

The post office guestimates annually the volume of mail it will handle between the first of December and the 25th. Even with the cost of postage almost five times what it was two decades ago, postal volume has continued to increase at a fantastic rate. In the mid 1950s, a billion and a half cards were sent annually. By the early seventies, the figure was three billion. Today estimators predict five billion Christmas cards will be exchanged.

Back when a letter traveled first class for 3 cents — from the early 1930s until 1958, and penny postcards could be mailed for a cent apiece — Christmas cards were somewhat specialized greetings miaied only to those one would not see during the holiday season.

Cards were of two definite types, serious religious ones or serious secular ones. The former featured nativity scenes, shepherds and wisemen and often contained Bible quotes from the story of the first Christmas.

Secular cards favored old fashioned candles, Christmas trees, wreaths and other holiday decorations. There were few humorous or comical cards for sale and colors stayed traditional — red, green, gold and white.

The economic explosion in the United States which marked the end of the first post World War II decade ushered in a time of consumerism whose emphasis is still present in today's thinking about Christmas cards.

Even though cards, envelopes and postage may run anywhere from a few cents over the 15-cent first class postage figure to a dollar or more per engraved missive, many still feel constrained to send them, not only to friends far away but to casual acquaintances as well.

Specialty cards exist for all relatives — even unto the third generation. I saw a greeting recently on a card counter to "great grandma and great grandpa." If it is supposed that one would be giving a gift to most relatives, why then such a card John Calcott Harsley might ask.

Harsley, the British artist credited with designing the first Christmas card for sale in 1843 at the request of Sir Henry Cole, chose both a simple artistic setting and enduring sentiment. The thousand engraved copies which sold for a shilling apiece, a rather sizable sum in Dicken's day, featured a large family group, including children clustered around an overflowing Christmas table. The inscription read, "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You."

By 1860, a large number of such Christmas greeting cards were being produced, bought and sent in England. The father of the American Christmas card, a German immigrant, Louis Prang, settled in Boston in 1850 and went into business as a lithographer.

In the mid 1870s Prang de develpoppwsed a process a process of color printing using as many as eight and sometimes twelve plates to produce rainbow colors. His first cards were of exceptionally high quality and, although intended as Christmas remembrances, featured floral designs.

Later, on popular demand, he produced what came to be the typical Christmas covers. In what proved to be a remarkably far-sighted public relations effort, Prang sponsored open competition for Christmas art desigtns, offering cash prizes as well as the name recognition an artist would receive from having his signed work accepted as a Christmas cover

Prang's products controlled the American Christmas card market until the mid 1890s. By then cards from France and Germany, produced far more cheaply than Prang's distinctive creations, flooded the American market. Today, most major greeting card companies produce a "full line of cards," providing greetings for all holidays as well as any kind of personal occasion.

In some ways the surge of Christmas card sending accompanied a decrease in material gift giving. Companies that used to provide clients with free samples at year's end and employers who treated employees and associates to extra bvenefits, sometimes cash, often foodstuffs, now send cards, many with calendars attached.

Giving calendars as Christmas greetings is a custom which began in our country in the late 1800s. Again, color lithography provided the means for creation of exceptionally decorative ones.

Turn-opf-the-century calendar cards had an entire year on their faces surrounded with floral or seasonal designs. Monthly calendars gained popularity in the twenties and thirties. Some of these art deco ones are collectors' times today. Calendars with large write-in spaces achieved popularity in the 1950s and 1960s.

Today, calendars come in many shapes and sizes. Nonprofit groups find them an easy way to raise funds. They're traditional as giveaways by banks and savings and loan companies. The major greeting card manufacturers, also produce them. Many are "themed" as "nature," "religious," "inspirational" or "humorous." About the only kind of calendar I can't seem to find on the market is the tiny postage-stamp-size set of months I used to enclose with cards of my own design a number of years ago.

Christmas seals are a spin-off from Christmas cards and all sorts of mailed greetings. I'm sure every home will receive at least one card or package this season decorated with seals bearing the familiar double crossbar red cross of the American Lung Association. Boys Town sends seals. So does Hanna Boys Center. The American Bible Society provides scripture ones. National Wildlife Federation seals feature birds and small animals in winter settings bordered brightly in red.

Christmas greetings are big business. But beyond that, Christmas cards are human business. As cards arrive daily, they bring kind thoughts and wishes from many whom I know well and some I know less well, but who have taken the time to connect with me as part of the human family. And perhaps that sense of human connection is what Christmas is all about. It's not too late to get a note into the mail to someone who needs that certain kind of Christmas greeting, a reminder of connection with the whole of humanity.

Season's Greetings everyone!

Cooperation is a noun which means collective action for mutual benefit.

To observe cooperation in action turn to the arts now reviving in San Mateo County. From Broadmoor to Menlo Park musicians, actors, dancers, painters, designers are pooling their talents to fill the County with more beauty than ever before. Their efforts are placing life upon a higher scale.

In San Mateo County, as it is everywhere, art is "the first and last of all knowledge," as Wordsworth said. "It is as immortal as the heart of man. It is the rock of defense for human nature; an upholder and preserver, carrying everywhere with it relationship and ove.

"In spite of difference of oil and climate, of language and manners, of laws and customs," Wordsworth continued, "in spite of things silently gone out of mind, and things violently destroyed, art binds together by passion and knowledge the vast empire of human society as it is spread over the Earth and over all time." The objects of art are everywhere "through the eyes and senses of man." It becomes "his truth, favorite guide . . ." In short, the object of the art projects that are found in San Mateo County and everywhere is to produce understanding and harmony through cooperation.

The fledgling production of Peter Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Ballet" in Daly City is a notable example. Upwards to a hundred people — most of them under fourteen years old — were trained to move together with rhythm and precision as they executed intricate ballet steps. The beauty of each scene depended on each person doing her part and doing it well.

Training the dancers and supervising the staging was the job of Diane Roberts, a gracious lady who has chosen to use her skill as a ballet dancer to each young people how to execute the steps of an art that has been called a touchstone with true beauty.

Costumes were created by the senior citizens of Daly City, while the stage settings were constructed by the members of the board of the Daly City Civic Ballet. Lighting and sound were produced by Bill Klinger of Paramount Theaters, James Maloney and Tom Chandler.

Most of the furniture that appeared on stage was loaned to Daly City by the Fine Arts Department of San Francisco State University. It required a vast amount of work by the board members and their husbands to move the sets in and off the stage. The Christmas trees that heightened the stage were donated by a Daly City gardener, August Conci.

Ticket sales were coordinated by the Civic Ballet Board. Senior citizens were invited to the performances as guests of the Westlake Development Company.

The cooperation of the Gellert Foundation, the San Mateo Foundation and some seventy friends of the ballet and patrons provided the backing necessary to stage the entire production.

Such community-wide cooperation is a concordant that is needed in every city and village. "Art is a reaching out into the ugliness of the world for vagrant beauty and the imprisoning of it in a tangible dream." George Jean Nathan.

Art in San Mateo County is people working together for better communities.

About the koala

By DR. DAVID R. BARNETT

Question:

We recently returned from a trip to Australia and brought back a stuffed koala as a gift for our nephew. He's 7-years old and wants more information on koalas than we are able to handle. Can you help us out! M.N.

Answer:

Although koalas are called "bears" they are nothing like the omnivorous true bears. It has a rather monotonous diet because it eats only one food, the leaves of certain eucalyptus trees — and that's all.

Adults are about the same size as a large bulldog and consume some two and half pounds of these leaves each night. It also derives all its fluid needs from these leaves. The oily leaves of the eucalyptus or gum trees require a highly specialized digestive system which apparently only the koala possesses.

Because of the desirability of it's soft fur, the koala was very hard hit by civilization.

Although a night-feeder, it does not hide by day — this, combined with its slow ways, made it an easy prey for hunters. It also has a extremely low birth rate — one baby every other year.

Twenty years ago it was close to extinction. However, Australian conservationists, stepped in to reverse the trend and the koalas are once again safe and growing. Baby koalas spend six months in their mother's pouch and then three more months in close association with her.

NURSES

NEW GRAD RNs

If you're a new graduate or interim permittee SEQUOIA HOSPITAL is now accepting applications for our special winter orientation program. For many years, we have been committed to specializing in meeting the needs of the new grad and our thorough 4-week orientation is only the beginning of that process. The orientation is designed to meet your special needs and is continually adjusted to the individual as you progress in the RN role. Your first career decision is important, so we invite you to call Mileva Saulo, RN, in our nursing department to arrange an appointment to discuss opportunities and tour the hospital.
